A Tribute to Contemporary Creativity -

ME Lisbon is a living gallery where every artistic detail tells a story.

ME Lisbon by Meliá unveils a carefully curated art collection that blends tradition, innovation, and multicultural expression, offering guests a unique sensorial and aesthetic experience.

At the very entrance, guests are welcomed by our most distinctive artwork—a striking installation by Portuguese artist Joana Astolfi, specially created for ME Lisbon. The piece, a sculptural reinterpretation of a travel suitcase, symbolizes a journey into Portuguese culture, setting the tone for the hotel's artistic narrative. In the lobby, a bold installation by Maria Ana Vasco Costa reinterprets traditional Portuguese tiles through a three-dimensional black panel where heritage meets modern artistry. Alongside it, a vibrant purple piece by acclaimed artist Fernanda Fragateiro introduces a minimalist dialogue with space, architecture, and memory. The immersive journey continues with Jorge Silva's painting “Paisagem”, featured within an innovative sound-art collaboration, enhancing the ambiance. Meanwhile, two powerful works by René Tavares address themes of identity, diaspora, and post-colonial narratives, offering a deeply evocative visual impact.

In the rooms and suites, artisanal finesse blends seamlessly with contemporary design. The delicate ceramic creations of Anna Westerlund and Elsa Rebelo infuse warmth and authenticity, while the iconic Bordallo Pinheiro introduces playful, nature-inspired elements such as the traditional Portuguese swallow. The historic Viúva Lamego enriches the ambiance with timeless tile craftsmanship, echoing Lisbon's cultural legacy. Finally, each suite is adorned with an exclusive photograph by Alberto Van Stokkum, capturing raw, spontaneous beauty with a modern, editorial flair.

for YOU

For those wondering where to eat in Lisbon, the city offers an exciting and diverse range of options. Before exploring Lisbon, many may have limited knowledge of Portuguese cuisine (aside from the iconic pastel de nata, of course), but after experiencing its offerings firsthand, one quickly becomes a fan of both traditional and modern dishes. Visitors to the city will likely want to try traditional food at one of Lisbon's "tascas", casual eateries serving local favorites like bacalhau (salted cod) and prego or bifana (beef or pork sandwiches).

However, those looking for a more refined dining experience can explore the many modern and Michelin-starred restaurants scattered throughout the city. Lisbon's food scene is dynamic and versatile, where you can easily transition from sipping ginjinha (cherry liqueur) with locals to enjoying a sophisticated wine pairing with a tasting menu. Whether you're in search of classic or cutting-edge cuisine, Lisbon offers something for every palate.

The term “Tasca” is deeply rooted in Portuguese culture, referring to traditional, cozy spots where homemade dishes and local wines are served in a relaxed, unpretentious atmosphere. Originating as small taverns near urban centers during Portugal’s industrialization, these establishments evolved into beloved spaces for social gatherings, where friends and neighbors come together to enjoy authentic hospitality.

Likewise, Cervejarias are places where beer flows freely, offering a similarly welcoming environment with great food.

A Marisqueira takes the social dining experience a step further, focusing on the sharing of fresh seafood. Clams, oysters, lobster, and prawns are served alongside dishes like seafood rice (arroz de marisco) and seafood stew (cataplana).

The lively, casual vibe is complemented perfectly by a glass of Portuguese white wine or vinho verde, enhancing the flavors of the fresh Atlantic seafood.

Whether in a Tasca, Cervejaria, or Marisqueira, these spaces are a true reflection of Portugal’s culinary soul —celebrating food, drink, and the joy of sharing.

Where to SHOP

Some things in Lisbon never change-and that's exactly why we love them. The city's markets and fairs are the heartbeat of its vibrant culture, offering an eclectic mix of treasures and surprises that have stood the test of time.

One of Lisbon's most iconic spots, Feira da Ladra, has been captivating visitors for generations. Every week, this legendary flea market unfolds across the cobblestone streets, showcasing a wild array of antiques, quirky finds, and hidden gems. Whether it's vintage weapons, rare coins, or antique stamps, collectors flock here to discover the past. But it's the oddities-faded Barbies, dysfunctional appliances, and whimsical trinkets-that give the market its surreal charm, offering a playground for the boldest decorators and curious wanderers alike.

For those seeking a more contemporary flair, Mercado da Ribeira, also known as Time Out Market, is a must-visit. Celebrated as the world's first Time Out Market, this bustling hub brings together a curated collection of the finest Portuguese food and artisan products, all housed within a beautifully restored industrial space. It's where locals and tourists alike converge to savor the best the city has to offer, from fresh seafood to gourmet snacks.

Further afield, LX Factory and Marvila have become hotspots for modern Portuguese craftsmanship. These creative enclaves are home to local artisans, innovative designers, and specialty shops that reflect Lisbon's evolving cultural scene. The markets here celebrate everything from handmade leather goods to contemporary art, offering a unique shopping experience that blends tradition with the pulse of the future.

Lisbon's markets are a living testament to the city's rich heritage, and whether you're searching for antiques, contemporary creations, or simply a taste of local life, they provide a window into the soul of this dynamic city.

"FEIRA DA LADRA" IS ONE OF LISBON'S OLDEST MARKETS, DATING BACK TO THE 13TH CENTURY. THE NAME, MEANING "THIEF'S MARKET," COMES FROM THE "LADRINHAS" (STREET VENDORS) WHO SOLD GOODS THERE IN THE PAST. TODAY, IT'S A HOTSPOT FOR UNIQUE VINTAGE FINDS AND ATTRACTS VISITORS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD.
